

Diana María Salcedo López

Diana Maria Salcedo López is a political scientist at the Universidad Nacional de Colombia, she has a Masters in women's studies, gender and citizenship of the Universidad de Barcelona and a Masters in human rights, state of law and democratization of the Universidad Alcalá de Henares in Madrid. Diana Maria Salcedo López is an activist, feminist and anti-militarist.

Diana Maria Salcedo López has worked as a consultant for 15 years, working for NGOs, international cooperation agencies and the UN in Colombia. She has also worked for government agencies, supporting processes related to women's rights, the inclusion of a gender and intersectional perspective in public policies and the monitoring of territorial processes of peacebuilding and the empowerment of women victims of armed conflict.

Diana Maria Salcedo López is the author of various articles on the rights of women victims of armed conflict and protection of female human rights defenders. Her articles focus on topics such as disarmament, the impact of small arms on the lives of women, sexual violence as a weapon of war and the participation of women in peacebuilding and peace consolidation.

Currently Diana Maria Salcedo López is the director of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom (WILPF/ LIMPAL in Spanish), a feminist and anti-militarist organization, with a 22 years presence in Colombia.

Social media and contact:

<https://www.limpalcolombia.org/>

Facebook: Limpal-Colombia

Twitter: LIMPALCOLOMBIA

E-mail: diana.salcedo@limpalcolombia.org – limpal@limpalcolombia.org