

Erika Mandreza Sales

Erika is the Programme Officer for Environmental Justice at Mama Cash, the oldest international fund for feminist activism. She gained her strong background in advocacy, monitoring & evaluation, programme management, research, and resource mobilisation from various work contexts. She managed grants and capacity strengthening projects for civil society organisations at Venture for Fund Raising and performed a key role in engaging individual donors / supporters for Greenpeace Southeast Asia. Her passion for feminism, gender, and partnership building are evident in her volunteer and work experience at the Women and Gender Institute (WAGI), Development Alternatives with Women for a New Era (DAWN), and the Asian-Pacific Resource and Research Centre for Women (ARROW).

Erika holds a BA in International Studies from Miriam College in Quezon City, Philippines and MA in Development Studies from the International Institute of Social Studies (ISS) of the Erasmus University Rotterdam in The Hague, Netherlands.
